BROPHY'S BODY IS IDENTIFIED BY BUTTONS

Identification of the body found some days ago on the Sonora beach near the point where W. H. Brophy was drowned November 13 was made positive through the description of the cuff buttons which Brophy wore when the accident occurred.

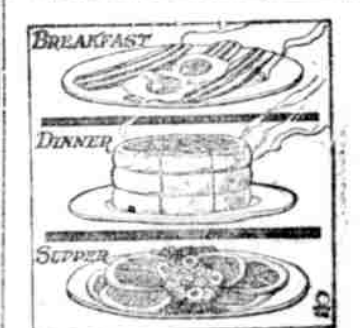

The funeral of William H. Brophy, former Bisbee banker, who lost his life when he was swept overboard from a fishing launch in the Gulf of California, and whose body was recovered last Thursday after it had remained in the waters nearly a month, was held at Tucson Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock from the San Augustine Cathedral, with mass by Rev. Father Timmerman, assisted by Father T. M. Connelly of Tucson and Father Mandin of Bisbee. The honorary pall bearers were former associates of the deceased, in the Phelps Dodge corporation of Bisbee.

EMERSON FOOTBALL BANQUET FRIDAY

On Friday, December 15, at 6 P. M., the last will and testament of numerous rabbits was sounded with much smacking of lips, for, on this evening, twenty football boys, all healthy, sound and otherwise in their right minds, celebrated the conclusion of Emerson's football season. The food was both dainty and well served and was a real credit to Miss Weber and her girls of the domestic science department.

After the banquet, Supt. J. Q. Thomas, acting as toastmaster, briefly reviewed the season. "Although," he said, "we won but one-third of our games, I feel that the team has done very well under the leadership of Coach Denman and Captain Black. The team was composed of Freshmen, green and light, and with this as a foundation big things are expected in the future."

Mr. Thomas proposed the following toasts, which were responded to as indicated: "Value of Football to a High School Boy," Howard Lockwood. "Value of Football to a High School Generally," Mr. Sitter. "Football Through a Substitute's Eyes," Francis Raulbach.

"Duties of a Captain," Edwin Black. "Athletic Ideals," Coach Denman. Following Coach Denman's talk Ed Black was elected to succeed himself as captain for 1923. In accepting Ed said that although he gravely questioned the wisdom of electing him for a second term, he would give the best he had toward bringing victory to Flagstaff. "With the same outfit from coach to waterboy," said Ed, "we can go through next season without a defeat by a high school in northern Arizona."

Those present were: Letter men, Edwin Black, captain 1922 and captain-elect 1923, Clyde Caffey, Clifton Williams, Victor McClure, Leslie McClure, Joe McClure, Fred Neckard, Harvey Cooper, Fred Montoya, Victor Bartlett, Howard Lockwood, Paul La Rue, Mervin Schwarz, Geo. Marine, manager. Others, "Babe" Cameron, Willis Bareham, Francis Raulbach, Frank Harrison, Mr. Thomas, Mr. Sitter, Coach Denman.

SENATOR ROBERTS FAVORS GLEN CANYON DAM SITE

Senator C. M. Roberts, of Wilcox, who is paying a visit to friends in Douglas, announced that he believed that the first work on the development of the Colorado river should be the construction of a dam at Glen Canyon, known as the upper dam site. He is unalterably opposed to the Boulder Canyon dam, this opinion being the same as expressed by the Daily International more than a year ago when the Colorado river work was being discussed over the state.

According to the senator the building of the Glen Canyon dam would be a protection to the land now in cultivation in the Yuma valley and in Imperial valley by holding back the flood water and besides it would be the means of cheapening any other work on the river which might be undertaken below that point in the future.

Regarding the seven-state agreement at Santa Fe the senator said that he would vote for it if it could be shown that it was fair to all the rights of the entire state of Arizona, but he said that so far as he knew no one now had sufficient information as to the possible benefits available to Arizona from the Colorado to base an intelligent opinion. He made it plain that he would stand for what he believed would be the best for Arizona after all the testimony had been presented to the legislature and further said that no intelligent man who was desiring to do the best possible for his state would be so set in his opinion that such an opinion might not be changed should he be convinced of error.—Douglas International.

DEATH OF MRS. LOUISA ZOOK

After an illness of a year's duration, Mrs. Louisa Zook passed away Saturday, December 9th, 1922, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. L. Reynolds, in El Reno.

Louisa Zook was born in Oregon, Missouri, in 1848. On July 31, 1866, she was married to John Zook. To this union were born five children, Mrs. Margaret Rankin and Mrs. Cora Reynolds of El Reno, A. J. Zook of Calumet, and Rev. W. H. Zook of Flagstaff, Arizona, survive her. Mr. Zook died several years ago in Union City. She is also survived by two sisters, Mrs. Bettie Watson and Mrs. Mary Snyder, of Lincoln, Nebraska, an adopted brother, J. P. Brown of Oklahoma City; nineteen grandchildren and seven great grandchildren. Two sisters and one brother preceded her to the grave. One daughter, Bertha, died when a child.

Mrs. J. L. Reynolds, her daughter, took her to El Reno and has been at her bedside constantly for the last few months. Funeral services conducted in the home church at Calumet, December 11th, by the pastor, Rev. C. A. Simmons, and the body laid to rest in the Red Rock cemetery. — Calumet, Oklahoma, Chieftain.

Rev. Zook arrived in Flagstaff Saturday after attending the funeral. Mrs. Zook spent the summer of 1921 in Flagstaff and drove with Rev. Zook to Los Angeles in the fall of that year.

GROWTH OF COUNTIES TRACED BY NEW MAPS

while the southern line in general was the Gila river, eastward through to Yuma county. Phoenix was named as the county seat. There was extension of the county by the legislature of 1872 to embrace a large area south and southwest of Phoenix.

In 1875, at the expense of Maricopa and Pima counties, was the creation of Pinal, with about the same boundaries as at present, though there was addition later of a few square miles south of Phoenix.

In 1879 the county of Apache was created, even more than the present area of Apache and Navajo counties in the northeastern and eastern parts of the territory, running southward to the Gila river. Snowflake was the first county seat, then Springerville was favored for a little while and finally St. Johns was determined upon. Mohave's county seat was changed to Mineral Park.

In 1881 was the creation of Graham county, with Safford as its county seat, this out of the southern part of Apache and the northeastern part of Pima; of Cochise out of the eastern third of Pima with Tombstone as its county seat, and of Gila out of northeastern Maricopa and Pinal, with Globe as the county seat and with a northern line in continuation of that of Maricopa.

In 1901 Gila county's northern line was extended to the northwest to the rim of the Mogollon plateau, and as far west as the Verde river, at the expense of Yavapai. Yavapai lost two-thirds of her area in the creation of the county of Coconino, with Flagstaff as county seat. To the northeast Mohave was extended to cover the region as far as Kanab creek and Kingman became the county seat. In Graham county Solomonville became the county seat.

In 1895 was the creation of the county of Navajo with Holbrook as the county seat.

In 1899 the southeastern corner of Pima county was formed into Santa Cruz, with Nogales as the county seat.

The last county created, this in 1909, was Greenlee, out of eastern Graham, with Clifton as county seat. There have been no changes since statehood, though Safford again is the county seat of Graham.

As far back as 1864 there seemed to be a degree of acceptance of the claim of California to a tract "lying south of Fort Yuma and the Colorado river, and between the Colorado river and the line of Arizona," for the territorial legislature asked that this tract, with the assent of the California legislature, be ceded to Arizona. This particular tract still is a subject of dispute, the more important in that it embraces a part of the area of the city of Yuma and considerable farm land lying to the west of the city and south of a bend of the Colorado to the northward. There was, and still may be, claim that the southern California line runs straight eastward to the junction of the Colorado and Gila.

"It has been my intention," said the state historian, "to amplify these ten maps by the location thereon of the various settlements of each period, some of them like Harberville, Adamsville, La Paz and many old-time military posts, now merely memories. When this is done prints may be made from the maps on hand, for distribution to the schools, visualizing the history of Arizona most vividly, as well as preserving much data that otherwise might be lost."

The Christmas Bells

Ring out the old, ring in the new,
Ring, happy bells, across the snow;
The year is going, let him go;
Ring out the false, ring in the true.

Ring out the grief that saps the mind,
For those that here we see no more;
Ring out the feud of rich and poor,
Ring in redress to all mankind.

Ring out a slowly dying cause,
And ancient forms of party strife;
Ring in the nobler modes of life,
With sweeter manners, purer laws.

Ring out the want, the care, the sin,
The faithless coldness of the times;
Ring out, ring out, my mournful rhymes,
But ring the fuller minstrel in.

Ring out false pride in place and blood,
The civic slander and the spite;
Ring in the love of truth and right,
Ring in the common love of good.

Ring out old shapes of foul disease;
Ring out the narrowing lust of gold;
Ring out the thousand wars of old,
Ring in the thousand years of peace.

Ring in the valiant man and free,
The larger heart, the kindlier hand;
Ring out the darkness of the land,
Ring in the Christ that is to be.

—Tennyson.
